TOJO TALKS

"Responsible" for War But "Not War Criminal"

Reunion in Washington

Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Bataan, takes his wife in his arms and tenderly kisses her on his arrival at National Airport, Washington, D. C., today ending more than four long years of separation during which time he was a prisoner of the Japanese. Wainwright, who is hailed as a hero, was the general who took over the gallant last-ditch fight on Bataan and Corregidor when MacArthur was ordered to Australia in March, 1942.

Tojo Accepts All Blame, Denies He's War Criminal

By CLARK LEE

TOKYO, Sept. 10 (INS)—"I am responsible for the war," former Jap Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo told me today. "I accept full and complete responsibility," Tojo added, "but I don't feel that makes me a war criminal."

End of Meat Rationing Seen by Oct. 1

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—End of all meat rationing by Oct. 1 was seen as a possibility by some rationing officials today, although no date has been set. Office of Price Administration officials said the decision would be made by agreement with the Agriculture Department but one government spokesman said: "If supplies look good by the end of the month, rationing will go." Shoes may go off rationing before November if OPA and the War Production Board see fit to follow recommendations of the shoe trade. Sellers have been advocating action this fall. Bowles has assured Congress that most rationing will end this year. Sugar and fats and oils, however, remained dubious. Bowles said continued scarcity of their supply made their release "impossible to predict" with accuracy.

Army to Free 2-Yr. Men in 1946

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (INS)—Rep. May (D., Kentucky), disclosed today the War Department plans to release by Sept. 1, 1946, all men who have had two years of service by that time. "That's the general purpose of the War Department," the chairman of the House military affairs committee, said. "Although it hasn't made any definite commitments on that yet." If the present plans for demobilization—under which the Army will be reduced from 8,000,000 to 2,500,000 men by July 1, 1946—are speeded up, the two-year men will be discharged earlier, May revealed.

ITALIANS DENY KILLINGS
ROME, Sept. 10 (AP)—An Italian communique denied today an Associated Press report of Saturday which said eight British soldiers had been killed in Milan in clashes with Italians.

Quisling Guilty of Treason, Must Face Firing Squad

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 10 (AP)—Vidkun Quisling was condemned to death today for treason.

A seven-man judge and jury panel convicted the former army major for his treachery in dealing with the Germans who established him as puppet premier during the long Nazi occupation.

The first announcement was made over the Norse radio. Reporters covering the trial were locked in the courtroom and apparently were unable to leave until the end of the session. The last sitting started at 2 p. m. Oslo time and was expected to last at least an hour.

The Oslo radio said the verdict was unanimous.

Quisling was sentenced to die before a firing squad—10 soldiers firing 10 bullets.

Quisling, whose name became synonymous with treachery during the war, did not move a muscle as the verdict was read depriving him of his life and all his wealth, estimated at more than 1,000,000 kroner ($227,000 at 1940 rates).

His beetled brows were drawn together and his jaws were clamped hard as the panel of three judges and four laymen read his doom. He was absolutely quiet.

He stood calmly and only a slight red hue appeared on his pallid face, paled by several months' confinement since German occupiers of Norway surrendered.

"We have reached our unanimous verdict except for some differences on a minor point and we order the death sentence in accordance with military and civil law," Supreme Court Justice Erik Solem intoned.

Neither the prosecutor, Annas Schjoedt, nor the defense attorney, Henrik Bergh, was present to hear the verdict. Bergh was ill at his home. Judge Solem said Schjoedt was unable to attend.

(Murlin Spencer and Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondents, in a copyrighted interview with Tojo said the Jap ex-warlord sidestepped queries as to his culpability, saying the American victors could fix responsibility for starting the war but that history might disagree.)

Now a "retired" citizen and farmer, Tojo received me in the garden of his modest home in a remote suburb of Tokyo.

The former Jap warlord was dressed in white shorts and shirt and had just come from digging sweet potatoes in his garden. He was in a jovial frame of mind but refused to discuss politics except for a few serious statements.

"I believe from the bottom of my heart that Japan's fight was based on righteousness," Tojo said. "America may not agree with me."

"There's a difference between being responsible for the war, as I am, and being a war criminal," said the ex-premier. Then he added:

"I don't feel I am a war criminal. However, that is for the victorious people to decide. A defeated general cannot say anything about it."

The man who is believed to have planned the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor said he thought "lots of American authorities higher than I" will decide whether he is guilty of war crimes, and he repeated:

"Defeated generals never talk about the war."

He said he was not preparing a defense for a possible trial as a war criminal and was not writing his memoirs.

"Ten years from now," Tojo promised, "if I'm still alive, I'll tell everything."

"Right now my heart is full of bitterness." (Spencer and Brines wrote that they had been told by a formerly highly-placed Japanese politician that Tojo expected to be tried as a war criminal and hoped to accuse President Roosevelt of being the world's top criminal, then commit suicide in traditional Japanese fashion. Of this Tojo refused to speak.)

(His whole attitude he expressed in this statement, according to the two AP men:

"Real soldiers fight to the finish in the field. War ends when peace is declared. Each respects an enemy who fights hard and cleanly and so MacArthur has the respect of myself as well as of the Japanese people.")

Tojo said one other thing about the war before declining to answer further political or military questions.

He stated that the Germans were absolutely ignorant of Japan's plans for attacking the United States, thus confirming what every other Jap general and admiral has told me so far.

Tojo looked healthy, with his face and bald pate highly tanned, and seemed completely at ease and full of humor. He gave occasional evidences of the keenness of observation which won him the nickname of "Razor."

The ex-premier looked the part of a farmer in his none-too-clean clothing. His shorts were held up by gray suspenders and a wide brown leather belt, reached almost to his gray wool socks with two-tone gray garters. His black shoes button over, gaiter-style.

As he talked he played with the leather thong attached to a long wooden stick, and smoked "Hope" cigarettes in a glass holder.

Tojo seated us around a garden table outside his one-story yellow stucco half-Japanese, half-foreign style house, ordered tea and offered us "Hopes" which he called "American cigarettes."

Tojo looked up as an American C-54 transport flew overhead and then picked up the Navy correspondent's cap belonging to Harry Brundige of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

He tried the cap on with the gleefulness of a small kid. He turned it this way and that on his bullet head and grinned, showing seven gold teeth.

Then he said:

"Oki desu," meaning "it's big." Like nearly every other Japanese, Tojo has had no experience with American planes.

A "Be Ni Ju Ku"—B-29—had bombed and burned down a house belonging to him across the narrow dirt road from his home on the night of May 25 while he was in the fairly elaborate dirt-covered shelter in the yard.

"My American souvenir," he said, laughing as he showed where the incendiary bomb case fell squarely on the roof of the dug-out and penetrated the earthen top.

Tojo was asked if the Americans knew it was his house and bombed it deliberately.

"I wish I knew," he replied. He committed himself to the extent of stating, "As a Japanese general, it is my opinion Americans are good fighters and a good match for Japan."

But on other subjects he was

Jap Warlords Ousted

TOKYO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur struck Japanese militarism a death blow today by ordering the imperial general headquarters abolished and simultaneously clamped a press and radio censorship on the beaten empire.

As supreme commander he issued a directive that the headquarters must dissolve by Sept. 13. General headquarters was set up in 1940 a few months before Pearl Harbor to coordinate army and navy activity.

While the occupation of Japan moved smoothly, sparks flew in Korea over MacArthur's police of retraining Japanese officials in office.

In a proclamation, MacArthur told the Koreans the purpose of the occupation by Seventh Infantry Division units was "to enforce the instrument of surrender" and protect them in their personal and religious rights.

Until further orders, all public officials and persons engaged in essential services in Korea were directed to perform their duties as usual, and to this country long dominated by the Japs the general called for "active compliance."

The blow at the Japanese general staff will erase the last symbol of Jap aggressiveness. It was the tactical organization of the entire military setup.

Even as this order was issued by MacArthur, Jap demobilization was well under way and trains loaded with hundreds of unarmed soldiers and naval personnel in the home islands were on their way home.

MacArthur found time today to visit the general hospital at Yokohama, where he talked with liberated American prisoners from Bataan, Corregidor and elsewhere.

Many patients stiffened to military attention as they recognized their old chief, but MacArthur motioned for them to remain at ease.

The Korean proclamation pledged "your property rights will be respected." It was dated Friday and signed by MacArthur as commander-in-chief of United States Army forces in the Pacific, not as the Allied supreme commander.

MacArthur's time-table for the occupation of Japan disclosed additional elements of one Marine and nine Army divisions would be in place by Oct. 23.

Korean Protest Has Not Reached President

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The White House said today it had not received a protest against Army action allowing Japanese officials to remain in office in Korea.

A dispatch from Jinsen, Korea, said the Koreans called an Army announcement "a slap in the face." Kilsoo Kaan, Washington representative of the Korean national revolutionary party, said he had telegraphed President Truman protesting the action as "highly ill-advised."

Surrender Plans For Singapore

SINGAPORE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, abdurate commander of Singapore and one of Japan's top ranking militarists, was nominated today to go through the humiliation of formally surrendering Nippon's southern armies to Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten here Wednesday.

Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, supreme commander of the southern armies, is suffering from residual paralysis.

Mountbatten's personal physician went to Saigon to determine whether 66-year-old Terauchi was really sick or merely trying to dodge responsibility and found him "a very sick old man."

House to Vote Pearl Harbor Sift

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (INS)—The House agreed today to vote tomorrow on a Senate approved resolution for a congressional investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Unanimous consent for the action was given by the House at the suggestion of Rep. McCormack (D.) of Massachusetts, majority leader.

McCormack said there would be one hour of general debate.

SEPTEMBER BRIDE—Sgt. Matthew J. Wall, of Somerville, a veteran of 32 months overseas, and his bride, the former Katherine Fraser of Austin st., Charlestown, leave St. Mary's Church today following their marriage at a nuptial mass.

Crime is "Fun" To Boy Trusty

Crime didn't pay for Robert J. Frederick. Nineteen years old, 4-F, blase, he admitted it in the police lineup today but told a story of having "fun" while he was at it.

Frederick, a trusty at Concord, escaped Thursday. For a starter, he stole sufficient clothing from the home of Michael Dee, master of the reformatory. Then, he related, he stole a car in Cambridge. He soon tired of it. He stole one more to his liking. He stole three gallons of gasoline from a boat in Boston. Next, he related, he drove to the Cape.

In Wareham, he went on, he discarded the second car and stole a preferable one from the Twin Motors Co. Police at the lineup told him the car he had selected in Wareham was owned by a deputy sheriff. The youth said he certainly hadn't known that. "I didn't see the tags," he explained.

Wareham didn't interest him. He started for Boston. On the way he obligingly picked up four hitchhiking sailors and played the grand host.

All that was Thursday. Friday, Frederick said, he broke into two Cambridge stores but gleaned a miserable five dollars for his efforts. He still had the third car, so he stole some gasoline from a trailer truck in Cambridge.

He was arrested early yesterday morning by Sgt. John Miller and Patrolman Frederick J. Becherer, who took him in tow when they found him sleeping in an automobile in a Charlestown parking lot. He told them he and an accomplice had stolen 30 cases of liquor from a Charlestown tavern.

In the lineup he said that had been a fib of the first water. He explained he did not want to go back to Concord and thought he might be sent to the State Prison, which was his preference, if he confessed to something a little bigger than he actually had done.

Girl Identifies 2 as Attackers In Blue Hills

Dorothy Towey, 21, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, picked two men out of the police lineup this morning as the ones who had subjected her to a night of horror in the woods of the Blue Hills, Friday. One, a 22-year-old Roxbury youth, formerly in the Navy, admitted her charge that he had criminally attacked her.

The other, an Albany st. truck driver, 25 years old, denied her assertion but admitted he had heard her calls for help while he was sitting in an automobile after his companion had forced her into the woods.

The Roxbury girl said the first man knocked her down and choked her to silence her screaming. She said he attacked her, and she lost consciousness. When she recovered, she said, the second man was attacking her.

Throng in Capital Hail Wainwright

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright told Congress and the nation today that America must never again become so weak that it invites another Corregidor.

The nation's capital gave the tired, gaunt general a hero's welcome. The man who symbolizes the nation's greatest humiliation and its greatest triumph said the U. S. must:

1—Be prepared so that never again will American soldiers be "forced senselessly to suffer torment and starvation."

2—Be firm with those "treacherous men," the Japanese.

The general landed at the National Airport shortly after noon, and the first to meet him was the missus, Kitty. For four long years she'd had little to do but worry and wait for this moment. She ran up the airplane ramp to meet him—and got an embrace and a long kiss.

From then on, Wainwright belonged to the people. He addressed both houses of Congress in separate sessions. And a mammoth crowd of 150,000 jammed the mall near the Washington monument to hear his public address. Thousands of others lined the flag-flecked streets to watch the hero pass.

Wainwright promised Congress it would be given the complete lockdown on Japanese prison camps.

He said even though the celebration ran "the sadness of remembering the brave men who fell not in battle but died in foul prison camps of their captors' cruelty and neglect."

"It is a pitiful story, gentlemen . . . I hope it may be revealed in all its ghastly detail. The American people must realize fully the nature of the enemy we knew so well."

This is the lesson Corregidor teaches, Wainwright said:

"I pray that this nation will never again neglect the strength of its defenses. I hope that the story of what Americans suffered will always be remembered for its practical significance—as a lesson which almost lost for us this land we love."

"Remember Bataan! Remember Corregidor!"

From the capitol Wainwright headed for the White House and a personal meeting with President Truman.

His busy day started when his plane landed at 12:26 p. m.

FIRST BONUS CHECKS—State Treasurer John E. Hurley, presents the first Massachusetts war bonus checks to Congressional Medal of Honor holder George J. Hall of Stoneham and Elizabeth J. Riley of Allston, a former member of the WAVES.

INSP BY LARRY McDAVID

1st Bonuses Go To GI, WAVE

A Stoneham Congressional Medal of Honor veteran, who lost a leg in Italy, and a 25-year-old Allston WAVE were presented the first two $100 Massachusetts bonus checks today, and promptly plunked them into the bank.

They are George J. Hall, 24, of Pine st., Stoneham, who was discharged with honors and given his country's highest decoration last April 6, and Miss Elizabeth J. Riley of Gordon at, life-long resident of Allston, who got her honorable discharge a year ago.

State Treasurer John E. Hurley presented the two checks at a State House ceremony and announced 300 other checks were being mailed at the same time to the first group of approved applicants.

"Checks will go out each day from now on," Hurley said. "The number will increase daily."

Both ex-service people left for their respective banks, declaring they like to save.

"I'm married and this will come in handy," Hall commented.

"I put money in the bank when I got out of service and this goes with it," Miss Riley commented.

Hall was a staff sergeant in the infantry and won the Medal of Honor for knocking out two German machine-gun nests at Anzio and attempting to blast a third with hand grenades. It was there he lost his right leg.

He is employed in the office of Francis X. Cotter, state commissioner of veterans' services. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hall.

Miss Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Riley, served at several posts in the United States and was a pharmacist's mate, 3c, when discharged at Great Lakes, Ill.

Groton Woman's 3 Dogs Win Another Court Stay

Laddy and Dutchy, a pair of handsome collies, and Little Beauty, a pert Spitz, came down from Groton to East Cambridge courthouse today while their loyal mistress, Mrs. Gertrude Foss, 60-year-old widow, won another round in her battle to prevent their seizure by the selectmen of Groton.

The three dog pals gambolled about the courthouse steps and then went home happily after Judge Good of Middlesex Superior Court continued until Oct. 1 a restraining order which guarantees them their home in Hollis st., Groton.

Today was the day on which police were supposed to cart them away because neighbors had complained the animals were too noisy and because the selectmen agreed.

But Mrs. Foss, an employee at Whittemore Hospital, Ft. Devens, told the court the dogs barked only when they were molested or when prowlers were about. She said she got Dutchy and Little Beauty on the advice of police when she complained that someone prowled about her property while she was absent at her hospital duties. Laddy, she declared, is owned by a sailor and she is only caring for him until the youth comes home.

Atty. Saul A. Seder, counsel for Mrs. Foss, expressed doubt the town statute which would deprive the widow of her animals is constitutional and was given until Oct. 1 to prepare papers to argue his case.

In defense of the town of Groton, Atty. Ralph Bomar stated that authorities do not intend to destroy the three dogs. He claims police and selectmen believe them a nuisance and want them placed somewhere else.

The town order which would send the canine trio hiking was decided by the selectmen at a V-J Day hearing which Mrs. Foss claims she was unable to attend because she was busy with hospital work.

So, on Oct. 1 or shortly thereafter, the three dog pals will have their real day in court.

They are assured of their present home until that date, at least, and Mrs. Foss is training them to be on their very best dog behavior. She hopes they don't bark.

More Revolting Jap Atrocities

By The Associated Press

The Australian government in an official statement declared today that Japanese soldiers ate the flesh of American prisoners of war after they had been used for bayonet practice. In other parts of the Far East stories of other brutal Japanese treatment came to light as hundreds of American prisoners reached safety and told of their existence in Japanese hell camps.

Thousands of other American prisoners were aboard ships and planes on their way home. In an official document made public today, Australian authorities disclosed that the Japanese had "resorted to cannibalism" against Allied prisoners.

The atrocity report said that Japanese soldiers tied the hands of captured American and Australian soldiers behind them, used the helpless men for bayonet practice and then, while they were still alive, sliced off their flesh for food.

Times and places were not disclosed.

The atrocity report was prepared for submission to the United Nations War Crimes Commission. From authentic evidence it was established that the prisoners were eaten and in some cases, the report said, human flesh was found in Japanese mess kits or over camp fires.

The report contained confessions from Japanese soldiers who admitted they cut up and ate Allied prisoners.

In other parts of Japan, China, Manchuria and Korea, American authorities continued to evacuate American prisoners from Japanese camps and rush them to medical centers.

More than 500 prisoners in northern Kyushu have liberated themselves and are roaming, awaiting the arrival of occupation troops.

'I Love Only You,' Dual Wife's Message to GI

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 10 (AP)—Mrs. Ann Birdwell today asked the Associated Press to send a message to her husband, S-Sgt. Gene D. Birdwell, assuring him that "I love only you."

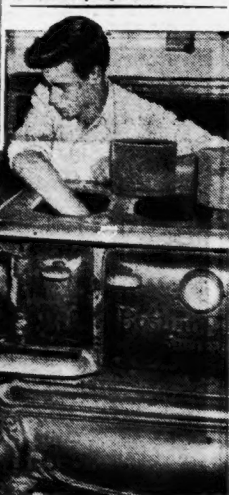

"Even if Gene won't take me back, it's all over between Jack Marshall and me," said the 18-year-old girl, referring to her marriage to Birdwell's uncle only 12 days before learning that the husband she believed dead had been released from a Japanese prison camp.

The message sent to the Army sergeant today, a day after he had learned of his wife's remarriage from Associated Press reporter Fred Hampson in Manila, read: "I love only you, Gene. Please forgive me. Got annulment. Anxiously waiting to hear from you. Hurry home, Jimmy in Manila. His address: James B. Birdwell, MOMM 2-c, U. S. S. E. C. Stanton, 2nd Division, Manila, P. I. All my love always, Ann." Jimmy is Sgt. Birdwell's brother.

Two Boys on Bike Crushed by Truck

Two South Boston youngsters were seriously injured today when the bicycle they were riding jammed between a trailer truck and an automobile in Edward Everett sq., Roxbury, throwing them beneath the truck wheels.

Thomas Kiley, 14, N. st., suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. James Norton, also of N. st., suffered a brain concussion and body injuries.

Thunderbirds Among 7000 to Land in Hub

The famed 45th (Thunderbird) Division, veterans of four invasions in Sicily, Italy and France, returned home today, proudly wearing more medals than any other outfit to arrive in Boston and boasting six Congressional Medal of Honor winners.

The benedicted soldiers, 5738 of them, were among 7000 troops arriving here aboard seven transports.

The CMH winners were not aboard, having returned from Europe by plane several days ago.

The Sea Owl was the first to dock, bearing 2959 men, including 161 New Englanders. The other ships docked today were Marine Devil, Felipe Mazzie, Daniel Drake, John Ireland and LaCrosse Victory.

Every man in the 45th shared the Division's honor of being decorated with the Croix de Guerre by Gen. DeGaulle, an honor won last July 2. The division took part in D-Day invasions of Sicily, Salerno, Anzio and Southern France.

The returning heroes were greeted on arrival by Maj. Gen. Robert T. Frederick of San Francisco, the division's commanding officer, who at 38 is one of the youngest division commanders in the Army.

Gen. Frederick, who arrived in Washington a few days ago, flew up to meet his men who served a total of 511 days of combat in the line during the European war. In all, the division, which landed in North Africa in the summer of 1943, captured approximately 100,000 prisoners.

Girl, 6, Takes Oath as Citizen

Six-year-old Elizabeth Keith Robinson, wide-eyed and dark-haired, solemnly raised her right hand in federal court today and swore she would be forever loyal to the United States of America.

It was a big day for this winsome moppet. She was accompanied by Thomas Hastings Robinson, U. S. consul in Guatemala, who, with his wife, had adopted her. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson brought her here for the express purpose of having her naturalized in Boston.

It was not disclosed where Elizabeth was born or how the Robinsons had happened to adopt her but the little girl won smiles from all the 259 other persons who became Americans today.

Judge Charles E. Wyzanski, Jr., told them all there was "no prouder title in the world than that of American citizen." He added:

"You may not be seated at the Yaltas or the Potsdam but by your votes you will have a voice in how far your country shall go in helping to build a world of peace."

Elizabeth appeared to like the prospect.

Can't Pick Mate's Job, Court Tells Wife

A wife has no right to dictate where or how her husband will make a living, declared Municipal Judge Shamoon today in ruling without a finding, charges of non-support brought against Guido L. Peracchi, 38, Hanover st., North End, a wounded World War II veteran.

Peracchi and his wife, Rose, agreed to reconcile their differences. He said she objected to him returning to his prewar job as a bartender in a Blackstone st., North End, cafe. He said he earned $50 a week.

FOOT CRUSHED BY TRUCK

Frederick Prendible, 9, of Cook st., Charlestown, suffered a fractured right foot today when a milk truck crushed it as he stepped from the curb at Moulton and Bunker Hill sts. He was taken to City Hospital.

Held in $3000 As Nude Attacker

Arraigned on charges of attempted criminal assault and indecent exposure, Walter Wolynetz, 25, of Wilson ave., Belmont, pleaded not guilty today in East Cambridge court and was held in $3000 for hearing Sept. 18.

Police said Wolynetz, completely unclothed, leaped from a clump of bushes at Harvard and Tremont bridge sts., Cambridge, and attempted to assault Miss Margaret Holumo, 23, on Sept. 1. Her screams brought an Army lieutenant to her rescue, but the alleged assailant escaped.

Judge's Boyhood Promise Kept

Judge Elias Shamoon today halted briefly a session of municipal court to keep a promise he made in jest more than 50 years ago.

Judge Shamoon asked an attendant to bring an extra chair to the bench and then ordered Capt. John F. McCarthy of the Milk st. station to come up and sit with him.

His explanation to those in court was as follows:

"When I was a young fellow in the South End, this man, then a patrolman, urged me to stay in school, and even told me, 'Some day you'll be sitting on the bench.' Well, I told him I never was and he appeared in my courtroom today to make him sit with me. That has finally come to pass and I want everyone to know what a fine man Capt. McCarthy is."

The captain blushed.

SAVED FROM DROWNING

A man believed to be Edward A. Monahan, 60, of Bussey st., Dedham, was pulled from Fort Point channel after a plunge today and is in critical condition at City Hospital.

Chelsea Boys Set Up Own Business, Emulating Ford

By ALICE BISSELL

Two 14-year-old businessmen are in on the ground floor of the brave new world.

"United Repairing" was the big red shingle they hung today over their shop in Walnut st., Chelsea, which they figured in their budget they could afford to rent at $5 per month.

Armand Cimino, 14, Chelsea High sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cimino of Poplar st., Chelsea, has a lifelong buddy, Daniel Flynn, 14, Boston Trade student and son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Flynn of Library st., Chelsea.

"We thought we'd rent this place and have a club for the gang to meet in, something to keep us off the streets," said Armand.

"Then the war ended, and we thought we'd better get going and get into business quick, because we know there are plenty of smart boys on their way home."

Average Car Has Gone 56,000 Miles

DETROIT, Sept. 10 (AP)—If your automobile has been driven 56,000 miles it's "average," according to a survey of car registrations. Six million of 24,000,000 cars still operating are 10 years old or more.

Vehicles nearest the junk pile are largely in the central west. The District of Columbia has the "newest" cars with an average age of 5.21 years, followed by Massachusetts with 6.09 years. Oldest cars were in Nebraska, average age 8.23 years.

The report said: "Best trade-in markets for used cars will probably exist in New England and the Mid-Atlantic States, because newer cars there will command higher trade-in prices."

Daniel said they pondered for days on a tricky name for their business, and finally decided on "United."

"That's to show we've been best friends always, and always will be; intend to divvy up all the profits," he said.

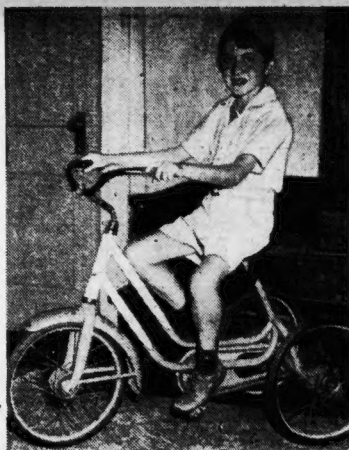

The youngsters specialize in repairing stoves and oil burners. Local landlords have already brought them a dozen old stoves to fix. They fix motors, generators and furniture, but their specialty is going to homes to clean stoves.

"We hope to learn how to fix just anything at all," said Armand.

"And someday have a big business and get rich, maybe just like Henry Ford," said his partner.

PAUL FEARN, 9, of Roselle, N. J., is shown at his home with a chain drive tricycle which his parents have been seeking since last Christmas. The boy is suffering from muscular dystrophy, a rare disease which cost the life of Lou Gehrig. The tricycle arrived just in time for Paul's birthday today.

Mother of 4 Guilty After Neglect Trial

Four children, ranging from two to 10 years, were left alone in an unheated tenement with only scraps of fish to eat and the youngest died shortly after of malnutrition, an agent of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children testified in Suffolk Superior Court today.

Miss Jessie H. Tucker, a witness in the jury-waived trial of Mrs. Alice Campbell, 29, of Elmwood st., Roxbury, on charges of desertion and neglect of children, told Judge John E. Swift the youngsters were dirty, partly naked and shivering with the cold.

She said Anna Marie, 2, died in City Hospital about a week later. Hospital records gave malnutrition as the cause of the baby's death, she testified.

At the trial's conclusion, the mother was found guilty and was placed on probation for two years with the expressed hope by Judge Swift she would "rehabilitate herself."

Miss Tucker said the children's plight was discovered Oct. 25, 1944, four days after Mrs. Campbell left. She testified she did not see the mother until last month when Mrs. Campbell was taken into Roxbury court on neglect charges.

At that time, Miss Tucker testified, the mother told her she could not stand her husband's "abuse." She was working on a hen farm near Haverhill, Miss. Tucker said.

Patrolman John J. O'Connell testified Mrs. Campbell told him she was "sick and tired of Jim's drinking and beating me." He said James Campbell, the father, was living with his mother in Roxbury.

O'Connell said Mrs. Campbell told him she was working on the farm to save enough money to get the children. She said she did not know Anna Marie had died.

The three surviving children were placed in a relative's home in Randolph by Roxbury court.

Cops Gave Cowan Vicious Clubbing, Witnesses Say

A parade of defense witnesses testified today Wilbur Cowan, 34, a 132-pound West Springfield war worker, had been given a "vicious, terrible" clubbing by two Boston police officers in the Suffolk Downs stewards' stand to precipitate the Aug. 11 riot at the track.

The long line of witnesses all testified Cowan—charged with assault and battery on the two officers, trespassing and inciting to riot—had been clubbed at least 15 times and as high as 40 times as the officers sought to eject him from the stewards' pagoda.

Previously, the first witness, William Almy, Jr., one of the track stewards, testified Cowan had been struck and knocked down by one blow of a club after he "seemed to be getting the best of the officers."

Cowan's invasion of the stewards' stand and the subsequent riot resulted from disqualification of the seventh race winner by the stewards.

After hearing the testimony of three track stewards and 16 defense witnesses, Judge Charles Brown continued the case until Wednesday.

Cases of three other defendants, Walter Sauer, 18, Harvard st., Cambridge; Alfred Pages, 36, Shawmut ave., South End, and Orlando DeRusso, 44, Falcon st., East Boston, charged with inciting to riot and disturbing the peace, also are being heard.

After Almy spent almost an hour on the stand, former Lt. Gov. Kelly, counsel for Cowan, asked the court for permission to place one of his 30 witnesses on the stand and said he would give evidence most of the others would corroborate only.

His first witness, Joseph Rosenberg, clothing manufacturer, of Dunreth st., Roxbury, testified Cowan was attacked from behind and clubbed by the two police officers.

The officers had been identified in court by Almy previously as Patrolmen Salvatore Ingneri and John M. McDonnell.

"He made no effort except to defend himself," declared Rosenberg.

"They rained from 30 to 40 blows on him and sent him to the floor. They kept hitting him after he was on the floor."

"It was vicious," declared Mrs. James Giles, another witness, from Strathmore pl., Braintree.

"After they beat him to the ground, his head was protruding from the door and one of the officers kicked it back inside," testified Mrs. Ena Rowney of Kimball ave., North Providence.

"There was no trouble with the crowd until he came down from the stand covered with blood," declared Charles Frangos, of West Canton st., South End.

"It was a horrible, disgraceful exhibition," declared Mrs. Pauline Cowk, Pearl st., Somerville.

"He didn't have a chance," said Donald Mosher, of Sunnyside st., Hyde Park. "They grabbed him from behind and rained blows on him."

"They gave him a terrific, awful beating," said Mrs. Louise Cleri, of River st., Braintree, who testified she had a win bet on the disqualified horse.

Eight other witnesses said they would corroborate all that previous witnesses had said and would differ only on the number of blows struck with the clubs, varying from a dozen to 40.

John E. Conway, Dunster rd., Jamaica Plain, and Herman P. Conklin, Salem, N. H., stewards at the track with Almy, followed the long line of defense witnesses.

Conway testified he was checking horses for the eighth race when Cowan burst into the stand in an excited state. He said the two officers put their hands on Cowan, that he pulled away and then they were struggling on the floor.

He said Cowan made no effort to attack the stewards and there were no bottles thrown by the crowd until one of the officers drew a club. He said he could not identify the officer.

Ontario Farmer's Wife Has Quads

DUNVILLE, Ont., Sept. 10 (AP)—Quadruplets, two boys and two girls, were born today to Mrs. Hugh Smith, 35-year-old wife of a Calstar Center farmer, at Haldimand War Memorial Hospital, Dunville.

Dr. E. L. McInnis, attending physician, said all four appeared to be in good health and he was "hopeful" they would all survive. Mrs. Smith has three other children, all under five.

Two of the other children are boys, and one a girl, Mrs. Smith, a nurse said, had been hoping to have another girl, and expressed herself as "very much surprised" when the quadruplets arrived.

Her husband visited the hospital this morning, but left a few hours later and was not available for comment.

Shirley Temple Buys Trousseau

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10 (AP)—Shirley Temple bought her trousseau today and announced she will be married "within the next 10 days" to Sgt. John George Agar, physical instructor at March Field Army air base.

Date of the wedding has not been set but it will take place in the Wilshire Methodist Church, said her mother, Mrs. George Temple.

The 17-year-old film star said all plans depended on how soon her fiancé is granted an anticipated furlough.

Kennedy Warns Capital

GREENFIELD, Sept. 10 (AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to the Court of St. James, said today Massachusetts was a "critical crossroad" and that decisions of the next few months by civic and political leaders would determine largely the well-being of its citizens.

Head of a special commission to study the need for establishing a state department of commerce, Kennedy conferred this morning with industrialists and later spoke at a luncheon, first in a series planned throughout the state in the next two weeks.

He said in a statement Massachusetts was losing more and more important industries daily and was failing to attract new ones. He added that 200,000 war jobs could be expected to end and that there might be as many as 500,000 men and women returning from the armed services.

The people of Massachusetts, Kennedy asserted, must forget their traditional conservatism and change $100,000,000 now invested in non-risk securities into venture capital because it was capital put into productive industry that made jobs.

2 Fish Vessels Ready to Resume

Obedient the War Labor Board order that fishing be resumed pending an attempt to conciliate a labor dispute, Boston boat owners today prepared two vessels for sailing as the opposing factions met to seek a settlement of the argument which has paralyzed the industry for two weeks.

Meeting in a closed session at WLB headquarters, union and owner officials discussed the situation for more than four hours without reaching a decision. The session was to continue until midnight, officials said.

Chairman Saml Wallen of the WLB presided. Other board members present were Robert N. Haskell, industry representative, and Michael J. Walsh, AFL delegate.

Kerrigan Vetoes Longer Vacation

Mayor Kerrigan today sent back to the City Council with his veto an ordinance to provide vacations of three weeks to city employees of more than 10 years' service and longer vacations for employees of 20 years' standing, including police and firemen.

The mayor said he wanted to consult police and fire department heads and added, "maybe at a later date I will be prepared to give my approval."

The ordinance was passed several weeks ago, with inclusion of police and firemen as a rider.

Kerrigan also submitted an order for $300,000 to complete renovation of the Houghton & Dutton building so the city might negotiate with the government for a 5-year lease.

In addition, he sent the council an order transferring $11,500 from the reserve fund to the public buildings department, to be used in reconditioning the Uphams Corners convenience station, closed since 1938.

Revere Parents Lose Second Son

Announcement by the War Department that Lt. Thomas F. Shaughnessy, Jr., 26, of Revere, was one of the 10 airmen killed Friday in the crash of a bomber near Wedowee, Ala., marked the second war tragedy suffered by his family.

Before enlisting in Feb., 1942, the young officer had worked with his father in the mailing room of the Boston Record-American and Sunday Advertiser.

In December, 1942, Mr. and Mrs. Shaughnessy were notified that a younger son, Sgt. Gerald P. Shaughnessy, then 19, was missing in action in the South Pacific. The sergeant, a Flying Fortress turret gunner, had come through the Battle of Midway unscathed and subsequently had figured in other engagements in the area.

Atheist Mother Opens Fight On School Religion Classes

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 10 (AP)—Three circuit court judges hear a new chapter today in the ages-old clash between religion and atheism. The occasion is a suit by Mrs. Vashti McCollum, wife of a University of Illinois professor and who describes herself as an atheist, to stop non-sectarian voluntary religious education classes in the public schools. The Champaign school board is the defendant.

The classes, which have been conducted for five years, are sponsored and financed by an association representing Protestant, Jewish and Catholic faiths, the board defense contends.

Mrs. McCollum's petition asserts her 10-year-old son was embarrassed because he was the only student in the sixth grade not attending the classes, which require parental permission.

Mrs. McCollum's petition, reiterating her atheism, said she accepted "no part of the Bible as true where such part is not in accord with reason."

She described religion as a "chronic disease of the imagination tion contracted in childhood," and asked a mandamus prohibiting the classes.

The school board's answer, filed by Atty. John L. Franklin, neither admitted nor denied Mrs. McCollum's assertions, but asked the court to require "strict proof" of her beliefs.

Churches have joined in supporting the board, and the Church Federation of Greater Chicago has appointed a committee to assist. Mrs. McCollum has drawn support from the Civil Liberties Union and the Chicago Action Council. The two groups provided her counsel.

Riot

Conway, said, he had never seen any "No trespassing" signs on the stewards' stand or any notation on track programs to that effect. He testified, however, that it was customary for those wishing to visit the stand on business between races to make their desire known to the clerk of scales.

Conklin testified he was the steward who tried to pacify Cowan when he burst into the stewards' stand. He said the officers arrived and tried to reason with the intruder without avail and then asked, if he wished Cowan removed.

"I told them, 'Yes, he has no business being here,' and then the struggle began."

As the first witness, Almy had testified Cowan burst into the stand after the disqualification with threats that he "would clean out the place."

Almy claimed that the two officers, who arrived a short time later, told Cowan he would have to leave and that he not only refused but stepped forward and hit one of the patrolmen, knocking him down.

"The three of them exchanged blows and he knocked down the other officer and was knocked down himself," Almy testified. "He seemed to be getting the better of it until finally one of the officers drew a club and hit him on the head, knocking him down. He didn't get up again until he was removed from the stand."

"That was quite a job for this 132-pound defendant to do on two good-sized police officers, wasn't it?" asked Kelly.

"He could outfight any man I ever saw," Almy declared. "He knocked them both down and he was doing quite a job."

Asked if any of the stewards had tried to give first aid to Cowan, Almy replied they were too busy "dodging bottles."

Kelly asked him what he believed caused the riot.

"In my opinion, it was this man causing a disturbance."

He testified the stewards were unanimous in their decision to disqualify Johnny Jr., winner of the seventh race, for a foul.

Kelly asked him to explain the foul and Almy said:

"He impeded both Windmill and West Fleet and took away their chances of winning. It was a serious foul."

"Yet the horse was placed third, wasn't it?" Kelly asked.

"Yes," Almy replied, "under the State Racing Commission rules, a horse committing a foul is placed behind those it fouled."

He admitted this was the first foul called by the stewards during the 54 days of the meeting but added that several fouls had been claimed and disallowed.

Under further questioning, Almy testified he was employed by the Eastern Racing Ass'n on all but the last four days of the meeting at $100 daily. He said some charity operated for the last four days and he received a "different" check but from the same paymaster.

Regarding his testimony that no one was allowed in the stewards' stand unless they had granted permission, Kelly read the Racing Commission rule which states that "all complaints should be made to the stewards in writing."

Almy agreed there was nothing in the rule about obtaining permission from the stewards and also admitted that the stand was not marked with "No trespassing" signs.

Probe to Summon U. S. Red Leaders

By DAVID SENTNER

Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—Leaders of the reorganized Communist Party of the United States were scheduled today to be subpoenaed as witnesses before the House committee on un-American activities which is planning to hold a hearing in the near future in connection with the revived revolutionary program adopted by the Reds.

William Z. Foster, new head of the revamped Communist party, as well as his life-long pal and associate in Communism, Earl Browder, deposed temporarily from Red leadership, will be among those summoned before the committee.

The inquiry into the latest switch of the Communist party line back to the fundamental Marxian doctrine of developing the class struggle is the result of demands by veterans' organizations supplemented by a growing sentiment throughout the nation for an official investigation of current Communist activities.

The postwar strategy of the Communist movement, investigators for the House committee have discovered, is again to trade on every sort of grievance, real or fancied.

The Reds intend to concentrate on minority groups in their program to foment discontent in the nation.

Communist party fronts, auxiliaries and publications are being administered by the party itself in blocs—Greek, German, Italian, Negro, Jewish, Spanish, etc.

In connection with the German bloc, not all of the plans for communizing Germany are being administered from Moscow.

In the United States, there are Communists whose business it is to organize as many German-Americans as possible—not only in order to convert them to Communism as American Communists but also to hitch them up with Communist developments in Germany.

The Latin-America bloc of American Communist fronts meddles in the internal affairs of Brazil, an example being the continued agitation in the United States for the release from prison in Brazil of Luis Carlos Prestes, who led an abortive revolution in that country.

The Far Eastern Communist bloc meddles in the affairs of China, attempting to tell the Chinese people that it is time to throw out Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The Greek bloc is now meddling intensively in the internal affairs of Greece.

First Battleship In From Pacific

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10 (AP)—The hard-slugging and lucky USS New York, first battleship to return to Los Angeles harbor since the end of hostilities, docked today with 823 Navy men due for discharge.

Scores of pretty girls in uniforms of the Naval Aide Auxiliary and singer Dinah Shore participated in an uproarious welcome to the returning men. Red-haired S 2c Louis De Angelis, 19, Philadelphia, responded by leaping from a gun turret to the dock before the ship came to rest.

Skipped by Capt. Grayson B. Carter, the New York claims a string of records, including that for heavy ammunition fired in one operation.

Last January she poured 5000 pounds of enemy installations on Okinawa. In that battle area 78 days, she was 76 days under fire or firing.

Escaped Nazi POW Back in Army Custody

LYNDEBORO, N. H., Sept. 10—Andreas Wegner, 34, German prisoner of war, who escaped Saturday from a fruit farm while assigned to apple picking duty, was back in Army custody today. He was captured by State Trooper William McBaine in South Lyndeboro.

In New England about one out of five have a "germ" disease referred to as Sinus Trouble!

Nine out of ten so affected believe that because of absence of pain, it is merely Catarrh and needs no relief.

More bodily ailments can be traced to Sinus Trouble than to any other single malady.

Doctors claim that over 50% of Arthritis is caused by Sinus Trouble. The lining of the heart may become involved. The kidneys may be attacked. Deafness and middle ear infection are common, necessitating mastoid operations. Moreover, there is apt to be a general debility with a lack of vital energy, in addition to frequent head colds.

REMOVE THE CAUSE AND YOU REMOVE THE TROUBLE. We have records to prove that this can be done! Treatments can be taken without discomfort, are moderately priced, and administered under a doctor's direction.

Tojo

non-committal, turning with a laugh of obvious self-appreciation at his skill in recognizing a so-called "political question" and dodging it.

Questioned about the events at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, Tojo parried with, "Ask the government men."

We pointed out that he was the government then, and he laughed and said:

"I forget."

Similarly, when he was asked if Japan's army and navy had co-operated fully, he chuckled:

"Why not ask your Army and Navy the same question?"

Tojo told INS Correspondent John R. Henry, Brundage and me that he visited a number of forward war zones during the fighting, including Bataan and Singapore, but never went to "Tuadar," which is the Jap name for Guadalcanal, because it was too far away and he was too busy.

Tojo was willing to talk about himself and his farming. He is 62 years of age according to Japanese reckoning which means 61 in America. The Japs figure their age from nine months before their birth.

Two of his three sons are soldiers who have been demobilized. The third son is an engineer.

Tojo's wife is living in the country and his daughters have their own homes.

He built his own home on land he acquired before the war. It is on a hillside, with a view of low hills a mile distant from the garden which he constructed himself with bamboo, stone ornaments and other typical Japanese arrangements.

His crops—sweet potatoes, vegetables of all kinds—are coming along gradually, he said.

"Before the war," Tojo said, "I farmed and worked in my garden as a hobby, but now, with the food problem, farming is one of the most important occupations in Japan."

"I don't raise flowers because in these times to eat is better than to appreciate beauty."

He has the same food ration as the ordinary Jap citizen but still possesses a small luxury in the form of a diminutive blue-painted Japanese-made "Datsun" sedan auto. He has lived as "a strictly private citizen," he said, since his retirement from politics.

He rises at 4:30 a. m., works on his farm—which is several acres with corn larger than most Jap farms have—until 7 when he eats a meager breakfast.

He reads until 11, eats lunch at 1 and returns to work without napping and remains outdoors until dark.

Afterwards he reads ancient and modern history. No friends come to see him and he does not play cards and has no other diversions except listening to music, although he plays no instruments himself.

His bedtime is 11 p. m.

"I like to ride," he said, "but the army took my horse away—I had borrowed it from them."

"AND SO, my Fellow Countrymen, today I report to you that your sons and daughters have served you well and faithfully with the calm, deliberate, determined fighting spirit of the American soldier and sailor. Based upon a tradition of historical trait, as against fanaticism of an enemy supported only by mythological fiction, their spiritual strength and power has brought us through to victory. They are homeward bound—take care of them."—General Douglas MacArthur in speech to people of the United States, following Japanese surrender aboard U. S. S. Missouri, September 2, 1945.

MORE URGENT

THE LEGISLATIVE measures now before Congress for establishment of permanent military and naval academies on the Pacific Coast have not been made less urgent but distinctly MORE urgent by the ending of the war.

They are of the greatest and most vital importance, not only to the Pacific Coast but to the whole nation.

These measures are increasingly urgent and nationally important for the most obvious reasons.

The Army and Navy of the United States must be maintained, if the peace we have won is to be secure, as highly proficient military and naval organizations; and moreover, as great SCIENTIFIC organizations.

Accordingly, the officers of the Army and Navy must be trained and proficient scientists.

American superiority in the many sciences related to the field of aviation was one of the pillars of our victory.

Scientific research, and scientific superiority, and scientific perfection—as near as that may be attained—are the keys to security and peace, not only for the United States but for the whole world; but of course our FIRST interest as Americans is IN America.

THE FINE old academies at West Point and Annapolis, upon which the Army and Navy of the United States have relied for trained and proficient officer personnel in the past, cannot meet these essential needs.

They have not, as a matter of fact, met them fully in the past, and especially did not meet them in the recent war.

The scientific superiority which our armed establishments achieved in the course of this war, and of which our ultimate and complete victory was the fruit, was not a product of West Point and Annapolis.

At the very beginning of the war, the Army and Navy realized the inadequacy of their existing officer training facilities.

With wisdom, and in haste, they created emergency schools for officers on the Pacific Coast where space was without limit, where climate was favorable in all seasons for all manner of operations, and where topography was ideal.

Since our greatest national aspiration now is for PERMANENT peace, why do we not make permanent use of the instruments which enabled us to have peace?

EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN:

WITH THE ceasing of hostilities in Japan and the proclamation of V-J Day, recruitment for the Women's Army Corps during wartime came to an end.

As we review the work of the last three years, and especially the wonderful publicity we received on such special occasions as the anniversaries of the WAC, the WAC Hospital Campaign, and the 10,000th New England WAC recruit, we feel deeply grateful to you and the staff of the BOSTON RECORD-AMERICAN and SUNDAY ADVERTISER for your interest and efforts.

It is through the recognized medium of newspaper publicity that we have been enabled most effectively to contact the public, and it was undoubtedly such assistance as that given by your paper that enabled the First Service Command to lead the country in WAC recruitment on several instances.

Thank you again for your generosity and support in aiding us to reach our recruiting goal.

W HERE'S YOUR DOG?

That's a question I had to answer about 50 times this morning. Even the cops in the neighborhood radio car asked me. Our dog is in the country. At last reports he was having a wonderful time. We thought the change would do him good. After all, a hunting dog should spend some of his life hunting. The last time we left him in the country he had a good time, too. Still the people taking care of him said that every time he heard the telephone bell ring he stopped what he was doing and waited as if expecting something to happen. "He was waiting for you to call up and say you were coming to get him," the man said. Well, anyway, I won't be writing much about my dog for a few months. But don't be alarmed I will continue to write as much as usual about Brooklyn and what I had for breakfast.

CONVERSATION: "And he says to me." That is what I heard five passing females say to their female companions on one short block. Sounds as if the girls may be spreading propaganda to make the public believe some men are actually getting a chance to talk. One time I asked a waitress what was the chief subject of conversation among the many groups of women she waited on. She said: "About 95 per cent of their chatter is about their boy friends or husbands or both."

PASSING BY: Dorothy MacKail. Erstwhile Hollywoodian. Now gracing the legitimate stage with her slightly statue-like blonde presence. Dorothy was born in Hull, England, and started her career as one of Mr. Ziegfeld's "glorified girls" and shortly after was given her first chance in films by Marshall Neilan. After she became a star, Miss MacKail's vehicles were notable for their snappy titles such as "Subway Sade," "Hard to Get," "The Love Racket," "Man Trouble" and "The Office Wife." Dorothy admits she is 40, but doesn't look it by ten years.

SHARING TAXIS: "New Yorkers wouldn't break down and share the taxis as people did in other cities," says Katherine Brush. Katy should know better than to say that. The New Yorkers didn't share the taxis because a Police Department ruling prohibited it.

Even if a group of people in New York city wanted to "break down" and share a taxi, the driver couldn't let them do so without violating police regulations and making himself liable to lose his license.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—How does a "silver blonde" rate on the list of the 69 different types of blondes? A—A silver blonde is a new type and increases the number of different kinds of blondes to 70. So far, the silver blonde has not been rated. Q—Did you ever ride the rods on a railroad train when you were a young fellow? A—Only once. I didn't like it. A—ough way to ride. But still more comfortable than riding on a Lexington ave., Manhattan, bus around five o'clock. That is the world's most terrible trip.

WIVES: Am asked what type of remark hurts a wife's feelings most. We have no definite data on this in our Horses & Women files but our experts have been instructed to launch an immediate investigation of the matter. I imagine criticism by a husband of the little lady's cooking is high on the list of cracks that hurt her feelings. Last week a New Yorker complained about the way his wife prepared some spaghetti. He emphasized his remarks by tossing the spaghetti out of the window and then leaving the house loudly shouting: "I'm going to eat in a restaurant!" When he returned he found his wife had been taken to a hospital. She was so hurt by his remarks she tried to commit suicide.

ASIDES: On West Fifty-fifth st., Manhattan, there is a nine-story apartment house that houses 120 families. An average of 13 families to a floor. And the sardines think they have it tough. "The Rescue Society Mission on Doyers st., New York city, still features the sign reading: "How long since you wrote to your mother?" A friend of mine seeing that sign some years ago was inspired to make a moving picture titled "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 10—Strictly in the interest of enlightenment and understanding, I submit some observations concerning the State of Mississippi and the City of New York.

As hitherto remarked in these essays, a number of New York politicians engaged in the current mayoralty campaign, and each coveting the votes of immigrants and their children as segregated blocs, pounced on an opportunity to denounce the indefensible conduct of Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi.

Mr. Bilbo and his rash utterances have not the remotest connection with this local election, but many New York politicians and potboilers of the more or less frankly Communist papers have made political capital by denouncing Mississippi as a backward State.

This propaganda against Mississippi began, according to my recollection, in the early days of Prohibition when most of the literate New Yorkers were given to feel an undeserved sense of superiority by the mischievous flippancies of Henry Mencken, who spoke derisively of Mississippi and other States of the Southern tier, as the Bible Belt.

Mississippi was dry, of course, as was her right, but she exceeded her right and angered us wets in New York by presuming to dictate that we had no right to remain wet.

THE PEOPLE of Mississippi owe no apologies to residents of the City of New York. She has, to be sure, her illiterates and bigots, but so have we and our vaunted public school system is such that in some schools we have had not mere childish mischief but serious crime, including killings, even by little girls and many neighborhoods are terrorized by young gangs.

If Mississippi has slum areas, New York's are worse and with less excuse. Because Mississippi is a cotton, yam and watermelon State, whereas New York has great foreign commerce and a great manufacturing business and we draw millions of dollars from all the other States by our hotel and amusement business.

The voluntary enlistment rate for our last two wars has been notably high in the Southern or benighted States, including Mississippi.

In expressing contempt for Mississippi people because of the quality of their statesmen in Congress, New Yorkers have deceived themselves. It would be wiser to consider the quality of New York's political leaders or oases and ask whether a city which elects a LaGuardia mayor three times, elects Senator Wagner repeatedly, and Congressman Vito Marcantonio, has any excuse to sneer at another State.

AMONG MY treasures is a bound volume of testimony taken in the Congressional investigation of the uprisings in the South, begun in 1872, which explains the old feeling of Mississippi and other Southern States.

The Northern rascals known as radicals and carpetbaggers, swarmed into Mississippi whose white population was, of course, broke. The cost of a legislative session jumped from $70,000 to $260,000. The cost of assessing taxes went from $20,000 in prosperous days to $175,000 in a period of bitter poverty. Putnam, formerly had cost $9000 and was now $18,000 a year under the carpetbaggers.

The white Southern men had lost the vote and the new Governors, elected by the former slaves, appointed sheriffs, constables, county treasurers and assessors, many of whom were absolute strangers who hated the Southern white man and robbed and persecuted him and his family without mercy.

The Legislature thus elected then required that there should be a public school for every 25 children and a school-master at an average of $60 a month and "these learned gentlemen required handsome edifices, bells and walnut furniture brought from Cincinnati and elsewhere."

In one county, 200 such schools were built. The tax rate went to four per cent on the entire property in the State and some of the people had to sell off their horses and furniture to pay the taxes.

I SUBMIT a suggestion that the memory of this ordeal was communicated to the children of that generation and, in diminishing vividness to their children and that when a few demagogues in New York, although not the people of New York, sneer at the people of Mississippi, the Mississippi citizens are apt to sneer back at the Northerners.

Hollywood Today

Pinch-Hitting for Louella O. Parsons, Who Is on Vacation

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10—First definite word that Katharine Hepburn is the star in the role of Marianne, the spitefire sister.

Contrary to reports, it isn't script trouble that held up MGM's $200,000 prize winning novel, if Elizabeth Goudge had been writing a serial for Republic she couldn't have put in more shipwrecks or sea battles, and she tops it off with an earthquake in New Zealand in 1840 that made the later disturbance in San Francisco look like a slight shiver. They couldn't build sets like that during the war. Hepburn's in New York dodging photographers, as per custom, and visiting her family, also per custom. By the time she's ready to return Producer Carey Wilson will have put his okay on Sam Raphaelson's script, and probably picked out Katie's co-starring partner and the other sister.

THE FUNNIEST original story since Dana Andrews' version of his early morning run-in with the gendarmes has been authored by Ruth Roman, and it is an hilarious account of the experience of seven struggling screen beauties who live in the old Wally Reid house near Sunset Boulevard. Being one of them, Ruth has titled her literary riot "The House of the Seven Garbos," and before the agents start jumping—Lloyd Bacon has first dibs on the screen rights. All the characters are real, including a colored maid named Chastreuve and a dog named Jerry. The girls' messages and dates are always written on a big blackboard and on one occasion the message was "Jerry—Lassie called." Lloyd, who has read the story, says it is another "Stage Door" with a Hollywood setting.

BRUCE CABOT, who suffered the undignified accident of breaking a foot when a slot machine turned over in Las Vegas, is turning the recuperation period to value. He's written a story on his brief career as a prizefighter when he was 17 and titled it "Punchin' Judy." He wants to produce it—and if he stuck around and picked up the dolls that spilled out of the slot machine—why not? Also, he wants to play the heavy, not the hero, in his yarn. "I'm not 17 any more, he admits.

CAROLE LANDIS says the reason she broke her engagement to Horace Schmidlapp is "he wanted me to give up my work and stay in New York. I wouldn't ask him to give up his career to come to Hollywood and just sit around while I make pictures." The particular movie that shattered the romance and brought Carole back to Hollywood has the unromantic title of "Precinct 33" and is described as a "Grand Hotel in a police sub-station." Otto Drawn by Col. Chin. Copyright—Copyright, 1940, by Features Syndicate, Inc. "Quit walking back and forth—your shadow keeps rubbing my sore back!"

Brower directs and the picture starts rolling September 20th—at 20th, of course.

JIMMY STEWART gets to Hollywood Thursday and he's already put his foot down about making a movie with a war background. Wouldn't you know it? There's a boy who isn't going to stand for any capitalizing on any angle of the hero honors he won in the war. And you can bet your bet he won't be amenable to a big public celebration in his honor. There were reports the Los Angeles Coliseum would be taken over for another whopper along the lines staged for Generals Patton and Doolittle. But a long distance telephone call to Jimmy in New York cancelled that—but quick.

MARIE WILSON has dropped her divorce suit against Allen

Nissen and they are together again, biling and cooing. "It would just a silly quarrel that took place while I was in camp," Allen said, "and before I could talk to Marie, she filed suit. I knew the minute we had a chance to get together and talk things over she would change her mind. We are as much in love as we were the day we married." Happy as they are the love birds are temporarily parted at this writing. Allen still has some chores for Uncle Sam and returned to camp at the week-end.

WHEN I SAW "Christmas in Connecticut" in a projection room with LOP she particularly liked Robert Shayne, who played the magazine editor. She thought he had charm and dash—and, let's face it—sex appeal. Shayne has taken all these admirable qualities to FRC to replace Rudy Vallee in "Ring Doorbells." Russell Birdwell's newspaper story about himself. Shayne looks no more like "Bird" than Vallee, but that's incidental, of course. Understand the trouble with Rudy was financial, with everybody getting tangled up in his percentage of the percentages.

HOLLYWOOD IN SHORTS Lt. Buddy Elsen will marry Nancy McKeown of the SPARS before he gets out of the Navy; it's a boy for Ray McDonald, former actor-dancer, still with our forces in Italy; if Maurice Chevalier lands in this country within ten days, as expected, he'll get a bid from Herman Hovver to appear at Ciro's; in addition to that engendered squander Betty Hutton is wearing a nine-carat affair—also a gift from the happy, happy groom. Which reminds me that Kay Williams (the new Mrs. Adolph Speckels) refused to tell how big her engagement ring is. The Speckels are honeymooning in the high Sierras; Bing Crosby got a clean bill of health on that physical checkup at St. John's Hospital. He is as fit as a fiddle; intriguing tale on Escille Taylor's memoirs. She's calling her book "Yellow Slip."

IRENE RYAN went to Hollywood Bowl the other night with a ruler, but dumbie, who looked right in the middle of the concert, "Gee, if you close your eyes, you can just imagine yourself at home listening to the radio!" the town turned out to welcome Max Baer and Slapsy Maxie Rosenbloom in the new show at you guessed it—Slapsy Maxie at Angela Greene. Warner actress is reported secretly married to Stuart Martin, who is the brother of Spencer Martin, Martha Kemp Mature's real heart; Ida Lupino and Helmut Dantine, who chilled for 10 days, are a heat wave again.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10—Betty Lawford, the actress, is at Doctors Hospital with multiple stitches in her head.

She was thrown out of an automobile in a freak accident... Bill Fyfe, the screen juvenile, confides to friends that he expects to wed the daughter of a Latin American dignitary—a girl he's been quietly courting for a year... Clark Gable and Dolly O'Brien still chat on the long distance phone, despite his romance with "The Face" Colby... Lew Parker, the comic, is the object of a terrific ribbing by the wags. He's fallen in love with a Pennsylvania heiress whose family can corn!... Fred and Adele Astaire will have a professional union via radio. They'll be sponsored by a food company in which they're the big stockholders... Frank Sinatra may take over the ownership of a currently-shuttered local club.

CAROL BRUCE is recuperating from a severe case of shock after almost drowning at Atlantic Beach over the week-end. Her bridegroom, Milton Nathanson, rescued her... Comic Joe Adams is growing more serious about June Haver than he planned... Lou Walters, of the Latin Quarter, will stage the big spectacle at the Detroit World's Fair of 1948-9... The millionaire husband of a wealthy California girl took an overdose of sleeping powders a few days ago in an attempt to make her change her mind about a divorce. It didn't work... Cab Calloway and Claude Hopkins, who slugged it out at the Zanzibar, were both guests at Lena Horne's Long Island home the next day.

BILLY DE WOLF, who was reported betrothed to Amy Arnell when he was a sailor, is pitching woo (in fact, woo!) with Olga San Juan now that he is a civilian... The city of Reno, in its feud with Las Vegas, will launch an intense campaign to prove that more people come to Reno for marriages than divorces. The ratio, they claim, is almost 4 to 1... Silent screen star Anita Stewart, who is married to millionaire George Converse, is being offered to Broadway producers for legit parts... Despite President Truman's urging that he stay in the White House family, Sam Rosenman is definitely planning to resign and return to private law practice.

LARRY STEVENS, Jack Benny's warbler, will wait down the aisle with Barbara Williams... Capt. Shepard ("Angel Street") Traube will be out of the Army in a few days and will go to England to snag a new play... Half of the 50,000 OPA employees will be dropped before Nov. 1... Word of Lauren Bacall's expected hula-baying (first item here) at last has been confirmed. Studio has scratched her from the cast of the picture she was about to make.

Boston After Dark

MONDAY MUSINGS: The Battle of Bulging Pocket-books, or the fight against inflation, is the deep concern of the Washington economists... Some of them are advocating a Ninth and Tenth Victory Loan drive (to follow the impending Eighth) as the means to keep Yankee dollars afloat from a spending spree which could well depreciate the buying power of the dollar to such an extent that wartime savings and investments might be endangered... The Administration is giving the problem a great deal of grave consideration, and some of the wartime checks against increasing the "inflationary gap," i.e., the surplus of lost money over consumer goods for sale, are sure to be retained for some time.

MORE MUSINGS: Homecoming veterans who fought the African and Sicilian campaigns are making amazing statements about dirty work at the cross-road... the burden of their chatter being that espionage had too much "inside" help until the brass-hats caught up with it... The famous University of Heidelberg, incidentally, emerged with very little—if any—damage, we are told... The Hammerstein-Rodgers song from "Carousel," the lovely lament called "If I Loved You," has been plugged and plugged in the same unreasonable fashion that sent the same writers' previous hit, "People Will Say" into too early oblivion.

GREAT POPULAR SONGS such as these could retain their popularity if a limit were placed on the number of radio airings... Cafe orchestras could use more restraint, too... Reprising the same tune three and four times a night serves to hasten the public's satiety... How often nowadays, for instance, do we hear "Deep in the Heart of Texas" and "Deep Purple" or, for that matter, "How Deep Is the Ocean?" (to stay with the "deeps")... All these tunes were over-plugged into long-run leadership of the hit parade of their day.

UNDER ITS new management and a floor show with chorus policy, the Casa Manana will open Thursday night with Billy Payne featured... The Myles Standish Cocktail Lounge will play host to steady customers and friends of the hotel's boss, Gil Johnson, tomorrow night, on the occasion of the popular spot's first anniversary... The 19-year-old piano wizard, Arthur Ray, who is featured at the Standish lounge, is an unusual prodigy.

YOUNG ARTHUR became a professional pianist only last Spring—and a soloist who drew musicians from far and wide because of his distinctive technique—after less than a year's acquaintance with his instrument... I know that reads like a statement of fantasy, because the Myles Standish bookings are cautious and expert... It's the fact, nonetheless.

THE EXPLANATION is that young Ray was a fine accordionist. (Even now he reads accordion music and translates it to his own brand of piano!)... Arthur began playing the accordion when he was 13...

WHEN HE WAS 18 the young Bostonian fell from a platform while performing... He suffered a severe injury to his back, and it became impossible for him to play the accordion... Physicians told him that he would be well advised to forego the notion of ever playing that instrument again... After a long hospitalization, Arthur turned to the piano... Part of his medical treatment requires that he wear a brace which makes it impossible for him to bend his back, but the brace did not preclude his sit-

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—If you heard that the junior Senator of a State went up to his senior Senator and said: "Now, listen here, son," you might feel that the junior Senator was being presumptuous, if not downright pre-cocious.

However it so happens that the junior Senators from 12 of our 48 States are older than their senior Senators.

There is only one way a man becomes his State's senior Senator—and that is by getting sworn in before the junior Senator. There are no other factors.

A great many solons—usually junior Senators—will try to make you believe there is no distinction to being a senior Senator. But they are only kidding you, if not themselves, too. Senior Senators get numerous extra privileges—choice of the best offices, the best seats on the Senate floor, and chairmanships of the most important committees.

A bitter fight over seniority developed a few years ago between Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada and the late Sen. Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana. Both were after the chairmanship of the powerful Judiciary Committee. Search of the records revealed that both had been elected the same day in 1932 and been sworn in the same day the following spring.

Van Nuys finally got the job. Witnesses testified he had been sworn in two minutes before McCarran!

GEORGE L. RADCLIFFE of Maryland is 68 and Millard E. Tydings is only 49, but Tydings is the senior Senator. Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire is 63 and Styles Bridges only 47, but Bridges is the senior.

One of our most venerable solons is Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island, now crowding 73. But he is junior to Peter G. Gerry, a boyish 65.

Nevertheless, I cannot picture Mr. Gerry patting Mr. Green on his septuagenarian noggin and admonishing: "Now Junior—!"

Robert A. Taft of Ohio is one year younger than 57-year-old Harold H. Burton, but Taft is the senior. Carl A. Hatch, senior Senator from New Mexico, is a year and a half younger than Dennis Chavez. Other instances are:

South Carolina: Burnet R. Maybank, 46, senior; Olin D. Johnston, 48, junior. South Dakota: Chan Gurney, 49, senior; Harlan J. Bushfield, 63, junior. Wisconsin: Robert M. La Follette, 50, senior; Alexander Wiley, 61, junior. Wyoming: Joseph C. O'Malley, 60, senior; Edward V. Robertson, 64, junior. Connecticut: Brien McMahon, 41, senior; Thomas Hart, 59, junior. Montana: Burton K. Wheeler, 63, senior; James E. Murray, 67, junior. Oklahoma: Elmer Thomas, 69, senior; and Edward H. Moore, 73, junior.

Sen. Murray told me he did not mind being Sen. Wheeler's junior "because no matter what our actual ages, I am much younger-looking and better-looking than he is."

"Furthermore," said Senator Murray, "everyone with any fairness at all agrees I dress far much better. I admit all this freely, so I will not have to go into court and prove it!"

By George Dixon

WHEN NEW Senators come to the Capitol they are introduced by their senior Senators who escort them down the aisle of the Senate chamber and present them to the President of the Senate. The newcomers are then required to register.

Sen. William F. Knowland of California, who has taken the place of the late Hiram Johnston, went through this ceremony the other day. He signed his name carefully, after which the Senate clerk took the pen from his hand, wiped it nice and clean on a blotter and handed it back.

Knowland looked puzzled, whereupon the clerk explained that Senators are always made a gift of the signing pen. I asked the clerk how much these pens cost.

"We do not encourage questions about the cost," he said. "But you can say they are the best five-cent pens obtainable!"

A YOUNG Navy ensign, who has hung up a great hero's record for himself out in the Pacific, was ushered into the office of Admiral King the other day to receive a medal.

Admiral King pinned the award on the ensign's chest, then engaged him in conversation. The hero answered all questions politely and intelligently. The admiral was obviously pleased; in fact he beamed all over.

Finally, as a parting question, the admiral asked: "And what year were you graduated from the Academy?" The reply caused the admiral to cough and go into a series of "burumphs." With an absolutely puzzled expression, the ensign said: "What academy, sir?"

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—Has there been any legislation for World War I members relative to a disability not incurred in line of duty?

E. H., Brookline.

A—Yes, there is a non-service pension, but it is not very recent. It allows compensation for total permanent disability. The partial degree clause has been eliminated.

Q—What is the best way for a veteran to go about getting his wife, whom he married overseas, into the U. S. Italy Invasion.

A—Your best bet is to go to Division of Immigration and Americanization, Room 209, 73 Tremont st., and you will be advised as to procedure.

Q—I am a World War II veteran and need dental work. Am unable to pay for necessary treatment. Does the Veterans Bureau take care of above treatment? I was honorably discharged.

E. W., South Boston.

A—The Soldiers' Home and Hospital, Chelsea, will take X-rays and make extractions, also provide partial dentures. Their facilities, however, are limited and it would take some time if necessary to provide rest of teeth for you. Veterans Bureau would take care of your request if such was due to service-connected disability. The Soldiers' Home and Hospital is sponsored by state and federal aid.

Q—I am a dishonorably discharged veteran and unable to receive vocational rehabilitation from the Veterans Administration. Is there any other agency I might appeal to for assistance?

P. B., Hyde Park.

A—The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, State Department of Education, Newbury st., Boston, will be glad to accept you. This branch is interested in your where. Suggest you contact them.

Q—My brother was killed in Germany. He was born in New Hampshire, but enlisted in Massachusetts (Boston). Where could I obtain application for state bonus, as I am next of kin?

E. T., Marlboro, N. H.

A—If brother was a resident of Massachusetts six months prior to entrance into service and his enlistment was credited to this state you are eligible to apply for his bonus, regardless of place of birth. Write for application: State Treasurer, Bonus Division, 15 Ashburton pl., Boston 8, Mass.

Q—What does T5 stand for before a soldier's name? F. J. Portland, Me.

A—Technician 5th grade, equal to corporal.

Q—I am interested in monument craftsmanship. Was honorably discharged from the Army six months ago, but not like the present job I have. Could you please tell me where I could get information on the above? F. E. Waltham.

A—Recently the government set up a program to train returning veterans in this particular field. There is a three-year training program being arranged. Suggest that you apply at U. S. Employment Office or any Veterans' Employment Bureau; also Veterans' Administration.

Q—Could you tell me when the boys on the China-Burma-India assignment are scheduled for return? Particularly one with the 788th Eng. Petroleum Div.?

G. T., Lynn.

A—No schedule as yet. Understand this outfit quite busy at present.

Airfield Started On Marcus Island

GUAM, Sept. 10 (INS)—A force of Seabees started work today on Marcus Island to turn the recently surrendered Jap stronghold into an airfield link on the Naval air route from Pearl Harbor to Tokyo.

In addition to use by the Naval Air Transport Service, the field probably will be used by commercial airlines when they resume operation.

OPA, WLB Open New War, With Fashion Frills as Cause

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Feminine frills have touched off a new fashion fracas between OPA and the War Production Board. WPB wants to throw out its three-year-old restrictions on the styles of women's clothing.

OPA objects, declaring that such a sudden reconversion of the wardrobe would invite the clothing industry to change fashions radically and then ask higher prices for the new styles.

The industry people add to the confusion by disagreeing among themselves.

Some sections of the garment trade want to go on a change-of-fashion spurge now. Others want WPB to wait until they sell their new fall stocks.

WPB doesn't care how milady's fall silhouette shapes up. But the agency expects fabrics to be fairly abundant soon, and would like to drop its controls over clothing as it is doing in other industries.

This would clear the way for longer dresses, more pleats, fuller skirts, added furbelows—in general, anything the style-makers decree.

Most of the garment industry is also anxious to get rid of the restrictions, WPB says it believes.

Oyster Season

Many Delicious Recipes Listed

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

ONE OF THE MAIN reasons for rejoicing over the coming of fall is the start of the oyster season. Like other marine foods, the oyster is a little mine of minerals—iodine, copper salt, sodium, calcium and others that are so important to the maintenance of good health. Oysters are very digestible also because of the glycogen, a special digested starch quickly available, which they contain and which is stored in the liver. They are also an excellent source of vitamins.

Therefore, because of their digestibility and high mineral and vitamin content, and other food values, oysters rank high as a food. And there is not a gram of waste in a freshly-opened oyster—every ounce of pulp and juice is edible.

BUYING OYSTERS

When buying oysters be sure that the shells are tightly closed. See that all possible liquor is saved and given you with the opened oysters. Oysters freshly opened are superior in flavor and mineral content.

Sometimes oysters are sold out of the shell or "shucked." They should be plump, with no evidence of shrinking, dents or broken parts. The water or liquid in which shucked oysters are sold is not generally their own juice, but added water. Examine the oysters for pieces or shells adhering to them—and always strain the liquid.

NOW FOR COOKING

Oysters should not be cooked long nor over high heat. In most recipes the sauce or cream gravy, etc., is made first and perfectly cooked, and then the oysters are dropped in, only long enough to curl their edges.

Tasty stews, scalloped dishes, fried oysters and cocktails are only a few of the many ways this palatable and nutritious seafood can be used.

OYSTER STEW

1-3 cup butter or margarine
1 pint oysters Dash of pepper
1 qt. milk 1 tsp. paprika
1 1/2 tsp. salt
Melt butter, add drained oysters, and cook 3 minutes, until edges of oysters curl. Add remaining ingredients and bring almost to boiling point. Serve at once. Garnish with paprika. Makes 6 servings.

SCALLOPED OYSTERS

3/4 cup butter or margarine
4 cups soft bread crumbs
1 1/4 tsp. salt 1/2 tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. lemon juice 1 pint oysters
Melt butter, add crumbs, seasonings and lemon juice and mix well. Arrange drained oysters in alternate layers with buttered crumbs in a greased 2-quart baking dish, using crumbs for the top layer. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

FRIED OYSTERS

1 1/2 pints oysters
Flour, dry crumbs
Salt and pepper 2 tbsp. water
1 egg, slightly beaten
Drain oysters and dry between towels. Dip in seasoned crumbs, in egg diluted with water, and in crumbs again. Fry in deep, hot fat (375 deg. F.) until golden brown. Drain on soft paper. Serve with tartar sauce. Makes 6 servings.

OYSTERS BAKED POTATOES

4 large baking potatoes
Melt butter or margarine
1 pint oysters French dressing
Hot milk, salt, pepper
1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs
Paprika

Scrub potatoes, brush with melted butter, and bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) 1 hour, or until done. Marinate oysters in French dressing 30 minutes. Drain. Cut potatoes lengthwise in halves and scoop out inside. Mash, add butter and hot milk, and season with salt and pepper. Beat until light and fluffy. Pile mixture into potato shells, making a hollow in center of each half. Arrange oysters in hollows in potatoes. Top with buttered crumbs, sprinkle with paprika, and return to oven 15 minutes, or until crumbs are browned. Makes 8 servings.

Shampoos for Any Type of Hair

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashions Editor

YEARS AGO, women used to say "I just washed my hair and I can't do a thing with it." Now, with the improved shampoos and hair products, we can do just about what we wish with our locks, provided we do wash our hair or have it washed frequently and properly.

Just because you are on a limited budget and can't afford a beauty salon treatment as easy as you like is no excuse for letting your hair go dirty. — an ugly word but let's face it. Your hair should be washed once a week to be really clean. The new smooth hair-dos are a great boon to the girls who wash their hair at home, and besides it is wonderful for your crowning glory to let it dry in the air and sunlight occasionally. Perhaps you have the baby-fine hair that is so lovely to look at but so hard to handle. If so, there is a wonderful shampoo put out by a famous expert meant just for you and for babies. You can see how pure it is when it is recommended for the infant scalp!

This foamy shampoo has a lanolin base, and leaves your silky hair gleaming and easy to handle. Girls with baby-fine hair can be grateful for it today, for it takes to those new wave-less coiffures beautifully.

SHAMPOO THAT HELPS A DRY SCALP

For women with normally coarse locks, this house puts out a regular shampoo which acts as a dry scalp and which leaves your hair beautifully, fragrantly clean. In between your salon visits, do shampoo your hair at home. You can do so with these products secure in the fact that you can manage any simple hair-do yourself.

This week a representative will be in a Boston store to give you advice on your particular hair problems at no charge, and to tell you which of these shampoos will suit your needs.

Call LIBERTY 4000, weekdays except Saturdays before five, or write me care of the Boston Evening American, Boston 6, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope, for further information on these products.

YOUNGSTERS like Paramount's Diana Lynn look particularly charming wearing a softened up-do for party occasions, but the hair must be shining clean and tractable if you are to coiff it yourself. Today's article tells you of a shampoo which helps immeasurably.

Too Much History at 24

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I'm almost 20 years old, have never been in love. I met a young man of 24 not long ago who told me he was single and wanted to make a date, but I wouldn't make it. Then later he told me he was married but not in love with his wife, and didn't want to fool me. Someone told me he had to marry the girl because she was going to have a baby, who is now over a year old, and that she really is a nice girl.

This man wants me to go out on dates but I will not go out with him because he has a wife. He wants me to tell him I'll marry him if he does get a divorce, but I won't. Do you think I should keep on seeing him, or should I forget all about him?—F. D. S.

If you have your best interests at heart, you'll forget all about this young man who seems to qualify as an A-1 double-dealer. I've not given all of your letter, but enough to show you, I hope, the type of person he appears to be a third party.

You hear that his wife is a nice girl and that he has a little boy over a year old. Surely you don't want to be the means of depriving a little child of his home in his most tender years.

Cut out the dates with this young man who's had entirely, too much history at his age.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: So many of the girls I take out want to be hugged and kissed the first time a man takes them out. Why is this? I really object to kissing strange women the first time I see them, and furthermore, I lose all interest in a girl who is too eager to "tag" me as belonging to her alone. I want to do the courting. I'm 18 years old and expect soon to go into the service.—JONATHAN.

A great many girls, these days, are without romance or reticence, and it looks as if you haven't met any but that kind. I get many letters from girls who object to "grizzly bear tactics" on the part of young men they meet for the first time. They prefer to stay at home. I'm sure you will meet the right type of girl if you keep on looking.

Prayer Book For Bride

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My son, who is a lieutenant in the Navy, returns this week from the Pacific for a leave, and he and his fiancée are planning to be married in an Episcopal church with the members of both families present. His bride-to-be and I have been making the plans together, and she has asked me to ask you this question: She is to wear street attire, and would like to know if with this kind of attire she can properly carry her Prayer Book, and if so, if she should wear a corsage, or instead have a streamer of flowers from her Prayer Book.—S. T.

With her street-length dress she may indeed properly carry her Prayer Book; but instead of wearing a corsage, it would be better taste, and I think far more charmingly effective, for her to have in the Prayer Book a marker of flowers, a particularly beautiful one being of white orchids and staphenotis. Huge Beret, But It's Light

By BETTINA BEDWELL

SALLY VICTOR, who makes a lot of millinery fashion runners, is joining the big hat brigade, but with some excellent modifications. She has a bigger beret, but she makes it light as a feather and calls it the "Souffle Beret." It weighs next to nothing, and at the same time fills the fashion bill that calls for a lot more hat.

What this beret looks like can be seen in Miss Dulin's sketch. This one is made of gray felt, inflated like a tire and with gray grosgrain ribbon running around the circumference. It sets down well on the head, leaving the face out in the open and becoming a sort of air-filled halo.

Sally also designed the handbag that goes with the hat. She likes big handbags, too, and makes this one of gray to match the hat.

'Easy to Get Along With'

There are so many cranky, bumptious people in the world that when we meet those who are pleasant, "easy to get along with," our hearts are comforted and joyous indeed. — MRS. BEECKMAN

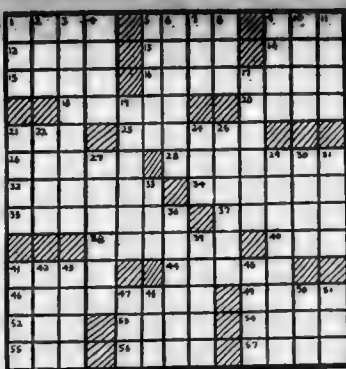

THE FAMOUS M. Louis designed this stunning coiffure, which is held in place by a glamorous eye-veil richly embroidered in pearls, the latter designed by one of our fashion leaders.

Man Found With Throat Cut Dies

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Sept. 10 (AP)—George McKnight, 47, described by police as an itinerant worker, died as he was being rushed to St. Vincent's Hospital after he had been found lying on the sidewalk, bleeding from a wound in his throat.

Two ROTC men stationed at Yale University, hitchhiking to New Haven after missing their bus, found McKnight. The ROTC men, John Huffacker and Bruce Strasser, summoned police.

Det. Lt. Joseph A. Morris, who identified McKnight by his fingerprints, said the man's jugular vein had been cut, there were other cuts about his throat and deep cuts on his legs. An autopsy will be conducted.

Navy, C. G., Plane Aid Rescue of 2

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. (AP)—Navy and Coast Guard vessels and an airplane, all directed by Assistant Secretary of the Navy John Sullivan, joined in the rescue of two men whose 40-foot yacht became disabled off the Isle of Shoals.

Sullivan called the Navy and Coast Guard when he sighted a distress signal at sea from Little Boar's Head, N. H.

The plane located the disabled yacht owned by R. L. Jacobs, of Babylon, N. Y., as Coast Guards searched on the surface, and a Navy tug towed the vessel to port.

NOW THAT THE WAR IS OVER

When can I get a telephone?

TODAY, FOR THE FIRST TIME in many years, this Company and every other unit in the Bell System are devoting most of their resources to fitting civilian needs.

Western Electric, the manufacturing company, is setting up every machine it has that will make telephone equipment. The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is putting every available man on the work of installation.

Your telephone is on the way.

But it will still take many months to meet all the requests for telephones that we have on file.

For one thing, we are starting from scratch. Because of military needs, practically no civilian telephone equipment has been built or installed in the past four years. This means not just the instruments, but the switchboards, the wires, the cables—all the hundreds of items that are necessary before a telephone can give you service.

The number of requests for telephones is now well over 100,000. To provide them, we will, in effect, build the complete telephone plant that would be needed for a city larger than Providence, Rhode Island. New England will have more telephones than it has ever had before.

By the first of next year, we expect to have installed practically every telephone now ordered, except in certain communities where central office construction is necessary. But there are some places where we have extremely complicated switchboards to install—some, even, where we must build new buildings for the new switchboards.

This work is being started and we are on our way to give service to all who want it—on our way to restore Bell System standards of service and raise them even higher. We are turning our facilities back to civilian service just as fast as we turned them to the instant needs of war.

"I was thinkin'..."

by IZZY ORT

Now that world peace is official, we can all settle down to trying real hard to believe that it is ACTUALLY OVER! Ya know, it sure makes ya feel swell when ya see the boys comin' back,—to stay! Yessir, our gang here at me popular Essex street grille were tickled upside down and backwards the other day when in walks Tony Massi, a former employee who's been doin' his part in uniform for nearly three years... Here's a tip yers truly has been hinting about for a couple weeks, and now I'm gonna git down to plain statements of facts instead of hints. Pretty soon, (the exact date will be announced later) you're gonna get a real treat, when the slickest, niftiest most modern cocktail rendezvous in these here parts is gonna open in me 25 Essex street house of fun. Yessir, in addition to me popular Grille yer gonna see a real new, real big, and really up-to-date place with yards and yards of elbow room. And you kin bet that in it you'll find the same spirit of hooray and whoopee that makes me grille stand out in downtown Boston as a grand place to have a grand time! Watch for the opening, coz it won't be long now... And don't forget, you kin git yer share of music, dancing and entertainment in me Grille startin' at noon, and till closin'. Or's Grille, ADVT

Silverman Gives Hub Boxing New Injection

By JACK CONWAY

The boxing game will come bobbing and weaving back into Mechanics Building tonight at a Callahan A. C. show. Sam Silverman, who came up from the small cities and towns where he made a specialty of staging action shows, is the promoter.

Silverman, a quiet and modest young man, does not promise to electrolytic fistic fans by his offerings. He does, however, insist he will feature the best available talent and that he will try to do everything possible to revive the cauliflower industry.

Four ten round bouts will feature tonight's card. None of the boxers have ever seen their names blazon in the lights over Madison Square Garden. They are young boxers who possess a certain amount of ring ability, and who have much hope and ambition. They are determined to scale the road that will gain for them ring greatness.

Timothy (Buddy) Hayes of the South End, who is only 18 years of age, will oppose Leo Macucci of Portland in a ten round bout that has attracted considerable interest. This is due to the fact Hayes is making his first Boston appearance since he was a preliminary boxer.

Since then he graduated into the main bout class at the out of town clubs. Hayes engaged in some of his most thrilling combat at Worcester where he always showed before capacity gatherings. Macucci is a rugged boxer and he is expected to force the capable Hayes to extend himself.

All America Champions

Willard Buckless of Saugus, who weighs 152 pounds and Bobby Zollo of Providence will collide in another ten round bout. Buckless and Zollo were All America champions. Both were recently discharged from the Navy and are anxious to win places for themselves in the ranks of the professionals. Buckless has only lost one of his 23 professional bouts, while Zollo has scored 12 victories since he quit the amateur ranks. Ernie Fort of Providence, Billy Ames' fistic protégé, will toss leather at Freddy Cabral of Fall River in another ten round bout, while the fourth ten round affair will find Tommy Moore of South Boston in action against Tony Ferry of Fall River.

Ferriss Beats Detroit For 21st; Sox Win, 9-2

By BILL GRIMES

FENWAY PARK, Sept. 10—Despite the humid weather, Dave Ferriss chalked up his 21st victory of the season this afternoon when the Red Sox beat the Detroit Tigers, 9 to 2, at Fenway Park before the smallest crowd that has seen Joe Cronin's ace hurler this year.

Ferriss let the Tigers down with seven hits, three of which came in the fifth frame and yielded two runs along with pitching a stellar brand of ball. Ferriss had a great day at bat, coming through with a single and two doubles.

Les Mueller was the losing pitcher. The Red Sox reached him for ten hits which accompanied by seven walks produced seven runs in five innings. Walter Wilson took over the pitching duties in the sixth but was relieved by Billy Pierce in the 17-year-old southpaw in the next round after Holm, Ferriss and Lake had doubled in succession.

For many years a growing and satisfied clientele of both men and women in all walks of life have brought their hair problems to us.

Allied Court Frees Schmeling

HAMBURG, Sept. 10 (AP)—Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight boxing champion, today was acquitted by an Allied military government court of a charge that he made a false statement to a member of the Allied forces contrary to military government regulations.

German officials applauded enthusiastically when the president of the court, Lt. Col. Donald Kaberry, read out the acquittal.

Harlow Predicts 1945 Grid Boom

Dick Harlow, who has just returned to Harvard from long duty as a U. S. Navy officer, was the principal speaker at the opening football writers' luncheon today at the Hotel Kenmore.

The Harvard head coach said that he thought this year would mark a readjustment period in college football, but that by next season there would be a tremendous boom in the sport.

Brown Eleven Light; Backs Have Class

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 10 (INS)—The Brown Bear may be a little weak around the middle this season, but he is sharpening the claws of a new offense. Head Coach Rip Engle said today that his football team will unveil its new point scoring system for the first time this season against Pennsylvania on Sept. 29 at Philadelphia.

Although Brown's genial mentor was willing to concede that early practices had "all in been fairly successful," he is concerned about the center of the line. The absence of experienced guards and centers has posed a puzzling problem.

The 1945 Bruins will field a fairly light eleven. Although the club will be short on weight, it will have a big advantage over last year's team in that it will be better balanced and deeper in most positions. This is true in particular of the backfield.

The coaches have a sturdy group of last year's veterans, headed by Capt. Roger Williams, hard-blocking, hard-running performer from Rockland, Mass.

Also, in the backfield are Tom Kavanian, whose passing and ball handling in the Engle 'E' are expected to pay dividends and Bill Lyons, from Bristol, R. I., a reserve who came along fast last season.

Veteran linemen are headed by Bob McFadden, a fast, rangy tackle, from Rahway, N. J., who played a whale of a game at the end of last season and is expected to pick up this year just where he left off last season. Sy Blustein, the big New York city tackle, and Tom McCormick, from Bellmore, L. I., at end, are two other members expected to shine.

Ed Netski, captain of the Bruin summer baseball team, who was a backfield regular for Bucknell last season, is the outstanding Navy transfer who will be playing his first year for Brown. Netski, a halfback, comes to Providence with a reputation as a punter and a passer.

Other "new" Navy men" who have shown to advantage in pre-season, practice include Irving Morris from Washington, D. C., at guard; Dick Rowley from Cohoes, N. Y., at tackle; center candidates Warren Mears from Glenelg, Pa., and Al Kavanian from Bridgewater, and wingmen Jack Spriggs from Washington, Pa., and George Watts, punter extraordinary from Garnett, Kan.

The new civilian members of the squad, with one exception, Jim Laikos, are freshmen. Laikos, a returned veteran from Pensacola, Mass., who spent a few months at Northeastern before entering the service, is expected to be the outstanding Bruin tackle.

Two of the outstanding freshmen backs are Fred Diehl, a Mercersburg star from Martinsburg, W. Va., who has shown plenty of fight and ability, and Lou Rankowitz, a hard-running, ball-totter from East Senior High, Pawtucket.

Lady Gunner Duel With Here's How Set for Gansett

By DAVE WILSON

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 10.—Visions of another Alsab-Whirlaway style match loomed at Narragansett Park as the result of an argument that developed this morning between the connections of Here's How and Lady Gunner, heroines of the great stretch duel in the Jeanne d'Arc stakes here on Saturday.

In making her run on the turn for home last Saturday, Here's How carried Lady Gunner wide, and though no actual contact was made between the horses, Jockey Johnny Breen thought his mount had been sufficiently interfered with to justify a claim of foul being lodged. This claim the stewards disallowed, hence the argument this morning.

It was Trainer Jimmy McGee who suggested a match race between the fillies on the same terms and conditions as last Saturday, when Lady Gunner conceded five pounds to Here's How. Owner Fred Wyse immediately countered with an offer to waive the five pounds and to match the fillies on even terms.

All this came to the receptive ears of Judge Jim Dooley, who immediately offered a purse of $7500 for a return meeting, winner take all. And so it has been agreed—and the date set for next Saturday, the 15th.

The terms are Morris Wexler's 2-year-old brown filly, Lady Gunner, will meet Fred Wyse's 2-year-old chestnut filly, Here's How, over six furlongs at even weights, next Saturday, September 15, for a $7500 purse, winner take all. The only proviso insisted upon and agreed to by both owners is that the track be fast.

In the event of a muddy track the match race will be cancelled. Both parties have agreed to the fillies carrying 116 pounds. Last Saturday's jockeys will again be in the saddle. Harry Pratt aboard Here's How and Johnny Breen up on Lady Gunner.

Malden Marvels

Picked by experts as one of the most formidable high school teams in the state, Malden High prepares to open its season against a strong Nashua team Friday night with Carroll Lowenstein (right), starting in the quarterback position. Barring injuries, the team should be close to the top in the State championship fight.
